Chapter 1 by fisi

i was stranded away in east africa, i lost my passport, money adresses, and my luggage also stolen, and am on a small village,where the people speak their local language and little bit about vasco da gama tongue which absolutely, i just know, what time is it ? and i learn it on the novel based on voyage of vasco himself.

on this small village,there is no other means of transportation the village is cutted away from the rest of land because of overflow of river bank ,no road at all, except small ways for bike,and small canoe of fisheries, so i used to communicated with sign language,and of coarse ,we understand each other as well, after many months,of thinking, how to leave this party of land, because ii know my family looking for me right now, what i discover is the ships passing far away from this village a shore away from this beautiful beach, and no man except very few individual fishman,and what worries me is that ,this village it doesn't have port,so that this ship they can dock.

so, i decided to speak with one fisherman friend of mine ,help me to catch any of those ship passing,,,,,,,,, after month of studying and calculating and analysing the risk, the village people help me to collected small penny and we buy fuel and also after hard working on repairing the village chief boat ,wow! its now working.....

yeee haaaa ! i said loudly celebrating the kick start of our SSCR from soviet era engine, they where given by old man, a fa village after living for so many years as gift also the villager where happy and thank me for help them revive their only boat engine in village .which also they use in time of emergence , brilliant ! the village chief said so next day it time to hit the sea,,,,,,,,,,,,, yeeee haaaa ! i said obligado amigos, i remember this is the last word before vasco da gama launched to sea in search for exploration yeeee haaaa , amigos (although am not vasco himself but am inspired by his work yeeee haaaaaa) obrigado, and i went to sleep for next day journey
